South Suburban News and Gospel Tribune Endorse Berrios for Cook County Assessor

The Voters Trust Joe Berrios. He has hired Their People. He has Elected Their People.

Cook County Assessor, Joe Berrios (left) poses with Michael Taylor, Publisher of The South Suburban News as well as the Gospel Tribune. Taylor says his publication's editorial boards believe that Berrios has done much to improve the Assessor's office and done an amazing job of electing more people of color to public office as the Democrat party leader.

Michael Taylor, Publisher of the Chicago Gospel Tribune and the South Suburban News is proud to endorse Joe Berrios for Cook County Assessor. Taylor says, Joe has proven his commitment to the communities that the papers serve. "I believe that Joe Berrios has been an ally to the African American Community for many years as the chairman of the Democrat Party of Cook County and has proven his support of minorities by ensuring that minorities are hired in his office. He has done more with less and always remembers the people of Cook County", he said recently. Taylor says he expects Berrios to win the election and is asking voters to vote for a man that has proven himself to our community.
